

Selsie and the Golden Prince

Once upon a time, there was a girl named Selsie. She lived in a small, cozy house with her older sister, Susie. Selsie loved to show off and sleep, while Susie worked 8 hours a day in a local restaurant.

One particular day, she complained to Susie "I want to live in a golden palace and have 300 dresses made of pure gold", Susie gently hugged her and said "You can only find it in books, Selsie". Selsie huffed.

The next day, Susie had some kind friends over. She told them about Selsie's wishes sadly. Her friends (Jeff and Ella) slowly nodded their heads and left.

Early next morning, a huge golden carriage stopped in front of the house. Selsie spotted it and jumped in curiously. Inside was a very handsome boy with a golden crown on his head. "Hello, my name is Prince Jein. Would you like to come to my wonderful castle in the north? It's made of gold and has dresses made of pure gold too.", Entranced by Prince Jein's words, she hurriedly said yes without telling Susie.

When they arrived, Selsie was extremely happy. The castle was made of gold like Prince Jein said it would be, with trees and grass made of gold too. And there were also 300 hundred dresses that were golden. Selsie played and laughed and slept (in a golden bed, and there was a soft mattress and a pillow made of gold lining) for hours and hours. Until she was told to get dressed in a golden dress. Selsie had difficulty putting the dress on, and when she finally managed, it was very tight and she couldn't move in it comfortably at all.

Soon, Selsie found out that water, food and other supplies were made of gold too. Selsie started to cry. She was hungry, thirsty and missed her home. Selsie told Prince Jein that she wanted to go home, but he cruelly laughed and walked away. At that moment, Selsie realized she couldn't live here, so she ran back to her house and never acted like a spoiled child again.

Moral: Greed can lead to misery and not everything is as perfect as it looks
